

Inscape student notebook computer specifications: 2010

last updated 3 August 2010

This information is provided for the convenience of Inscape students and applicants

The links below take you to the pages where the software manufacturers list the recommended specifications for their applications

Note that notebook computer processor speeds are often slower than their desktop counterparts

Using machines with lower specs than recommended may result in the software not performing optimally

Consider also that regular software upgrades mean that a computer that is satisfactory today may not be adequate in two years time

Autodesk - AutoCAD: System requirements
